Book Early

Book early to get the best sites. Some RV parks book way out - especially those in California or near National Parks.

Ask The Questions

Traveling with pets? Be sure to confirm pet-friendliness and any amenities for pets at the park.

If you are towing a trailer, you'll want to speak with the park to see if there is a separate location to store your trailer or if there is a pull-through site long enough to accommodate your total length.

Restaurant on-site? Minimum stay? What types of RVs are permitted? Is 50 amp service available? Cable TV? WiFi? Cancellation policy? Clubhouse? Recreational facilities? Any premium sites with add-on amenities like outdoor kitchens?

Helpful Amenities

Full hookups: freshwater, electric, and sewer (gray and black water disposal).

Pull-through site: a campsite that allows you to pull through it without having to disconnect (especially convenient if towing a trailer).

Lingo

Boondocking or Dry Camping: camping without any hookups (water, sewer or electric).
